Benjamin A. Gilman (chairman of the committee) presiding. Chairman Gilman. The committee will come to order. Before coming to office, the Clinton team s most famous contributions to foreign policy were three aphorisms: first, that the economy, stupid, was what Americans cared about, not the foreign policy accomplishments of the Bush administration or its predecessors; second, that the Bush administration was coddling dictators in China and pursuing an inhumane policy in Haiti; and, third, that the solution in Bosnia was lift and strike. Upon assuming office, the Clinton administration found that things were a little more complicated than had been contemplated. It reversed course on China and on Haiti, found itself unable to lead our European allies to adopt a lift-and-strike policy in Bosnia, and found itself beset by a variety of other dilemmas. During the past 6 months, our Administration has looked at its record, proclaiming that there was much for it to be proud of. The Administration has claimed success in Haiti and Bosnia, the Middle East, in Ireland, and in Korea; in relations with Japan, on saving the Mexican economy, on the extension of the nonproliferation treaty, and on making progress on the fullest possible accounting for our MIA s and POWs in Vietnam and elsewhere. I join in lauding some of the Administration s achievements. For example, the indefinite extension of the nuclear nonproliferation pact was definitely a...
