This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Neuware - Scientific Essay from the year 2009 in the subject Business economics - Economic Policy, grade: 93 %, University of Western Sydney (School of Business and Marketing), course: International Business Environment, 13 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: If there is one truism about China, then it has to be its unique business environment. Politically China remains a communist country, but one with a dynamic economy. This combination was never achieved by another country (KPMG, 2004). China's economy is huge and expanding rapidly, with an average growth rate of 8 % in Gross Domestic Product (GDP) per annum for the last 30 years. The Chinese growth is almost miraculous and in 2007 China's GDP reached 3.42 trillion US dollars, while most analysts expect China to become the largest economy in the world in this century (Economy watch, 2009). China's admission to the World trade Organisation (WTO) in 2001 signalled the growing maturity of this market and is expected to further increase the investment opportunities (KPMG, 2004). However, the global financial crisis has hit China hard with...
